The household is warm, friendly, and active. Housemates enjoy getting out into the community, attending football games, spending quality time with family, and exploring creative passions such as art. They value independence while supporting one another, taking pride in their home and fostering a positive, encouraging environment where everyone can build skills, confidence, and a true sense of belonging.

The four current residents attend a day program and lead active lifestyles, regularly participating in evening and weekend activities. They share a close bond, enjoy spending time together, and come together each evening to share dinner.
